Art Historian and Los Angeles native Margot Goodharte, her pastor husband Paul, and his hat-loving mother, Ruth, have relocated to Mitchell, the small town in California's central valley where they have been called to serve. Ruth suffers from Alzheimer's and Margot cares for her. Next-door neighbor Sue is Margot's confidant and buddy. Estelle Delsey, the stodgy widow who has installed herself as Mitchell's ultimate arbiter of taste and standing in the community, is a key member of Paul's congregation. Ruth's dementia, and the needs it creates, provide Mrs. Delsey with the opportunity to soothe her guilty conscience from her history with her own mother-in-law. As Ruth's decline continues, the family faces impossible choices. Paul's older brother and the Goodharte family black sheep, Matthew, arrives on the scene with his own opinions about their mother's care—and an eye for Sue, who hides a history of hurts from everyone but her best friend Margot. Will the brothers draw closer through this journey or will their disagreement rend their relationship? Mrs. Delsey sees the gifts smuggled in beneath the cloak of dementia, but will she be able to bless the family with her perspective? Can Ruth remain in the parsonage, or is she a danger to the family? Will Sue open her heart to another chance at love, or will she reject Matthew? Will Margot find a way to keep art in her life without compromising her care for her mother-in-law? Can Paul lead his family through this tragedy and maintain his unwavering faith in God?
