Leadership Equilibrium: A Biblical Discussion of Business Leadership Dr. Michael A Rhodabarger

With all the unethical and immoral leadership behaviors taking place today, leaders are crying out for someone, somewhere to show the way to success without compromising their integrity. Leadership Equilibrium starts with the premise that organizational success begins with the leader. Dr. Rhodabarger has studied corporate leaders as well as leaders within the clergy discovering one powerful commonality- Effective leadership balances two imperative styles: transformational and servant leadership. Interestingly, one might think that servant leadership is found exclusively in the clergy while transformational leadership is better suited for the CEO. However, the best leaders have found the answer to success- balance. Leadership Equilibrium is no respecter of title, position, or job description; all are subject to the mandate of balance. But the most fascinating truth is that the best leaders- Christian or not- use leadership principles that are supported by the Bible. Leadership Equilibrium walks you through the two leadership styles, their seven competencies, and what the Bible says about those practices. It will show the practices of some of the most notable CEO's of today and how they approach difficult business decisions while maintaining a high level of compassion for the workers. You will also discover how some pastors are leading with a business mindset while maintaining the pastor's heart. Everyone is a leader to some degree. The question is "How well will you lead?" So, sit down with a cup of coffee and let's have a Biblical discussion of Business leadership as we talk about Leadership Equilibrium.
