Building Golden India is about the future of India and unleashing the potential of its 1.3 billion people. The interests of students, parents, society, industry, and the nation are intimately connected through the higher education system. Further, in the next 35-50 years, India must educate and prepare 700 million to 1.3 billion young men and women for their lives and careers. So, how is India's higher education system doing and how could it be transformed to better meet the needs of students, society, and the nation? In this book, the author shares a vision, provides a compelling analysis rich with stories, anecdotes, and data, and then lays a roadmap that takes us from today's mega challenges to a brighter future for India and its people. He has drawn from his over thirty years of student, alumni leadership, and professional experiences. He has also read thousands of pages of national and state level committee reports and numerous books. Finally, he conducted over a hundred interviews with a diverse group of stakeholders in India and across four continents. Have you asked any of these questions? – What could a Golden India look like? – What would it take to go from harsh realities of today and build a brighter future? – How could India unleash the potential of its 1.3 billion people? If you have, then this is the book for you. This book is also for you if you are an educated youth, professional, or someone who deeply cares about India and its future. What can you do? Where does one start? Find out in this book. Start reading. Join the conversation. Be a part of the movement. #IAmForGoldenIndia
