The End of the Pacific War: Reappraisals (Stanford Nuclear Age Series)

This book offers state-of-the-art reinterpretations of the reasons for Japan's decision to surrender: Which was the critical factor, the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, or the Soviet Union's entry into the war? Writing from the perspective of three different nationalities and drawing on newly available documents from Japan, the United States, and the former Soviet Union, five distinguished historians review the evidence and the arguments—and agree to disagree. The contributors are Barton J. Bernstein, Richard Frank, Sumio Hatano, Tsuyoshi Hasegawa, and David Holloway.

Donald Fujita:

As a university student exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher requested them to go to the library or make summary for some publication, they are complained. Just small students that has reading's soul or real their hobby. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading very seriously. Any students feel that studying is not important, boring and also can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important for yourself. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever we really wish for. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this The End of the Pacific War: Reappraisals (Stanford Nuclear Age Series) can make you truly feel more interested to read.
